INTO THE PRIMITIVE

A SELIG RED SEAL PLAY

Film reviewers claim that the Selig pictureplay, "Into The Primitive", is among the most unusual and absorbing film dramas released during the present season. Included in this great drama written by Robert Ames Hennet, are a herd of wild elephants, a python, a river swarming with alligators, wild baboons, lions tigers, and leopards. Kathlyn Williams is starred in this feature production and is most ably supported by Guy Oliver, Harry Lonsdale and Eugenie Besserer. The drama has to do with the adventures of two men and a woman cast ashers in desert vice.

On Monday evening the third of a series of illustrated lectures on missionary work in foreign fields was given to a fair crowd. This was given to a fair crowd. This was given by Miss Rexroad and her subject was "Five Years in Africa." This was founded upon her own this year as tennis grounds but players have always been bothered more or less with a wet and soggy court, resulting from poor drainage, but the club this year have eliminated this difficulty entirely and have a good, dry, well drained court that can be played on a few hours after a rain good, dry, well drained court that can be played on a few hours after a rain. The court is entirely surrounded by a wire fence from twelve to fifteen feet high, thus saving a lot of time from running after balls.

The object of the Arucanian Tennis Club is to create more interest in this popular summer sport around Clarksburg, and as the members do not use the court all the time, they are renting it out in periods for a very low price for the entire season. This gives a splendid opportunity for several tennis players and small clubs to get in the game. Some very fine periods are still unrented, but the court being located so near the center of the city and with tennis season just opening, these periods will no doubt be all rented within the next few days.
